OR. ALDERMAN TO GRADUATES

Distinguished Educator to Speak at High School Commencement.

MUCH DEMAND FOR TICKETS

Exercises to Be Held in Academy of Music To-morrow Night.

The thirty-first annual commencement of the Richmond High School will take place at the Academy of Music to-morrow night, and there has been a great demand for tickets by those who desire to attend.

Never has this demand so far exceeded the capacity of the house, and it is a source of deep regret on the part of the school authorities that it cannot be fully supplied. A splendid programme has b en prepared, embracing speeches, music and the delivery of diplomas and certificates, and the evening promises to be a most enjoyable one.

The annual address will be delivered by enjoyable one.

The annual address will be delivered by Dr. Edwin A. Alderman, president of the University, of Virginia, and he is an orator of fine attainments.

The session just closed has been one of the most successful and satisfactory in the history of the school, and the authorites are greatly pleased at the fine work of both teachers and scholars. The exercises will begin at $515 o'clock and will be opened with music, which is the first number on the programme.

The entire programme programs an attractive appearance and will no doubt be executed in a highly entertaining m nner. As is the custom, the graduating class will occupy seats upon the stage and the young ladles will be in white.

The Mayor, members of the school board and other citizens interested in the work will also be upon the stage.

The Programme.

No Benefit No Cost.

If you are weak and wornble, have headache, backache, neuralgia, or periodical pains, it is because you have exhausted your nerve force.

If you cannot sleep, and are thus robbed of the rest which nature demands for the restoration of mental and physical vigor, your system will continue to run down.

Dr. Miles' Nervine restores vitality by soothing and strengthening the nervous system, thus inducing refreshing sleep, and imparting strength and vigor to all the organs of the body.

There are very few instances where Nervine will not benefit; if not, your druggist will re-if not, your druggist will refund the money.

"When I began taking Dr. Miles' Nervine I had a very sour stomach, with pain extending far around on my left side—attended with extreme nervousness. I dreaded to have night come, as it was impossible for me to sleep. Everything I ate distressed me, Before I had finished one bottle of Nervine there was such a change that my husband bought six more, which has restored me to health."

days before the Senate adjourned. Certain, he had nothing to do with the bill in Virginia. The Legislautre had passed the bill, and he (the Governor) had signed it.

Where was the junior senator during the fifteen years, when the struggle was on in Virginia? It was not surprising that the junior senator said he was surprised when he received a letter of thanks from navy yard employes, who had been paid for overtime through his efforts, when the fact was that the record of the Senate did not even show that the junior senator was present in the Senate chamber when the vote was taken.

Without Experience.

No man with such little experience had ever applied for a public position as the junior senator when he became a candidate for the Senato, and yet the junior senator's friends said it was presumption for him (Montague) to apply for the position of senator.

The Governor's reference to the candidates who opposed Martin before the Legislature, General Eppa Hunton and Fitz Lee, was greeted with great applause. Such great men were defeated by a man who was known to only one in twenty in Virginia. He had no apologies to make in seeking the senatorship but he asked if they felt like he could fill the duties of the position to their satisfaction, to vote for him.

He had no machine, had no organization.

He closed with a reference to the statement that if he was elected senator, he would wrap his toga about him and stand on his dignity, and reviewed his own record as Governor, the defense of each act of his administration heing growted with applause.

He left his candidacy in the hands of the people and asked them to see their friends and organize, if they wished to see him nominated. The Governor spoke about an hour and a half, and was frequently interrupted by applause.

about an hour and a hair, and was rrequently interrupted by applause.

The opinion of all was that it was the most powerful political speech ever delivered here. The size and spirit of his crowd was in strong contrast to the reception accorded Senator Martin here earlier in the campaign.

Government Employes Much Much Stirred Up Over President's Order.

TO OVERHAUL DEPARTMENTS

Investigations Will Be Thorough and Sweeping Changes Will Be Recommended.

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)
WASHINGTON, D. C., June 17.—The order of the President appointing a commission of five, headed by Assistant Secretary Keep, of the Treasury Department, to investigate and report whether business of the departments is being conducted as economically as possible, has created a great deal of interest in Washington, both among government people and outsiders. It is not amiss to say, that the majority of business men believe the government's work could be done much more economically than at present. The working day of a department is only seven and a half hours, with a half hour for luncheon. The clerks ment is only seven and a half hours, with a half hour for luncheon. The clerks in the general offices of the Southern Railway, a block from the Postoffice Department, for instance, work from 8 until 5 o'clock, with a half hour for luncheon. That extra hour and a half counts for a great deal in the course of a year.

Every government clerk is entitled to one month's vacation every year, and also to thirty days' absence on account of sickness. So that the actual working year is only ten months, for it is the general practice to take the sich leave, though, of course, many do not.

The President issued an order last year which made the quitting time of the clerks 4:30 P. M., instead of 4 o'clock, and there are no Saturday half-holidays any more. These changes had the effect of demoralizing the forces in the various departments, and rumors of this demoralization are said to have reached the White House, and to be largely responsible for the order. It is also said that rumors of practices which, at least, are unbusinesslike, caused the order to issue.

Sweeping Changes.

Sweeping Changes.

It is well nigh certain that the commission is going to recommend some sweeping changes, and the government employe is living these days in a state of constant trepidation, lest he wake upsome morning soon and find that the place he held is non est.

Heads of some of the departments are disposed to criticise the Executive for ordering young subordinates to investigate the working of departments. Secretary Shaw is understood to be especially critical of the order. But the President is careless of such criticism. The investigation will proceed. Chairman Keep said this afternoon that progress would not be rapid, as it was the intent on of the commission to proceed with care, and every member of it has his daily duties, which take the most of his time. But he indicated that 'recommendations for the improvement of the service in the interest of economy and without the sacrifice of efficiency would be made, regardless of who is affected.

of efficiency would be made, regardless of who is affected.

Senator Henry G. Davis, in the course of a speech in the United States Senate twenty years ago or more, said that the system of book-keeping in the Treasury Department during the war between the States caused the government a loss in four years of a billion dollars. As good a business man as he might find that the system in use there now is just as multy.

DR. JOSEPH SPENCER DE JARNETTE.
Dr. Joseph S. DeJarnotte was born in the early part of the last century (which has evolved the greatest events in America), at his ancestral home, "Pine Forest," in Spotsylvania county, Va, and lived and practiced his profession nearly sixty years among the people who knew and loved him To be useful for his day and generation seemed to be the boundary of his hopes. He lived a fust man He died a Christian Every aspiration and prayer seemed to be for the benefit of others, without a stain of selfishness. The highest ideals of religious and civic duties gave to the life of Dr. DeJarnette its splendid cast and made it a model for good men of all nations. Dr. DeJarnette, in the midst of his family, makes a picture of the true, the beautiful and the good. He derived his greatest pleasure in life from the love and affection of his daughters.

He was a learned man, with a mind of the finest calibre and keenest perceptions, deeply read in science and metaphysics, familiar with the views and writings of the great scientific men of Germany and of France, having read and disested Darwin, Matthew Arnold, Herbert Spencer, Sir Edwin Arnold and all the able men's views of Europe and America. He remained to the end a glorious pillar of Christian orthodoxy, I do not know how it is, I cannot explain why it is, but whenever men of note pass through my mind the name of Joseph Spencer DeJarnette is foremost, and suggests all that is good, tender, patriode and all that is great in human nature.

He was graduated at the University of Virginia in the languages, moral and intellectual philosophy, and received his M. D. from the School of Modeline in Philadelphia. "Uncle Joe," as his nieces and nephews loved to call him, was an ommityerous reader, as familiar with the ancient classics as the modern, and seemed to have absorbed therefrom whatever was great and good, being a fine Greek scholar. He gead many of the Greek scholar. He gead many or the DR. JOSEPH SPENCER DE JARNETTE.

ever was great and good, being a fine Greek scholar. He read many of the Greek and Latin authors in the original. He admired greatly Lord Helvin. Above all things he loved nature. It was his de-light to walk or ride along the banks of the streams and gather wild ferns and other beautiful gems of the forests. Ho discovered a most beautful fern, that was known as "Uncle Joe's fern" around the whole country; saw beauty and har Mrs. Bardara Stickley, STRASBURG, VA., June 17.—Mrs. Barbara Stickley, widow of James Stickley, died last night at 8 o'clock at the home of her daughter. Mrs. George Beeler, near town, aged about sixty-six years, licr death was due to heart trouble. She was all the word of the say, with Emmierson, the Miss Hamman before her marriage. She nearer we live to nature, the nearer we live to God. His life was an inspiration to those who were fortunate enough to enjoy his converse. As Dickens says of "Little Will" "Oh, there are lessons that such lives do teach." It must be a consolation to his daughters to feel that the world has been made better and happier by his having lived.
